Thought for the Day

I would say to all, use your gentlest voice at home. Watch it by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth to you in days to come more than the best pearl hid in the sea. A kind voice is a joy, like a lark's song, to a hearth at home. It is a light that sings as well as shines. Train it to sweet tones now, and it will keep in tune through life.—Elihu Burritt.

The Baraca society of the Baptist church entertained a large number of its friends last evening at a measuring party at the Baraca annex to the church. Besides a goodly number of members about fifty guests presented themselves as candidates for measurement, evidently each attaining the given requirements as the Baraca fund was swelled $13 dollars worth this morning. Boiled peanuts and cakes and refreshing lemonade were served by a bevy of young ladies who saw to it that no one was left out. Misses Rebecca Counts, Evola Strong and Gertrude Brigrance dispensed the punch. Many jolly games were played, the Sunday school orchestra rendering a splendid program all during the evening. Those having special charge of last night's entertainment were Mrs. Will Goin, Mrs. Ida Martin, Mrs. Charles, Miss Irma Brigrance, Messrs. Harry Cole, J. D. McCaskill and W. T. Gary. The Baraca entertainments are the very joy of all church socials and are enjoyed by every one so fortunate as to be a guest, and last evening's entertainment was no exception to the rule.

Miss Irma Brigrance is the weekend-guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brigrance at their home in Micanopy.

The Baptist sewing circle will meet with Mrs. Whitley and Mrs. Burkhart at their home, "The Wisteria," Monday afternoon.

Rev. Roy Bowers of this city has been appointed principal of the Eustis high school, with Miss Omer Holloway of Tallahassee, as first assistant. Mrs. L. M. Brinkley has purchased the house on Fort King avenue known as the Hiller place from Mrs. William Anderson, and expects to take possession about the 1st of September.

ber. This is a splendid piece of property and Mrs. Brinkley is to be congratulated upon securing it.

The many Ocala friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Rogers will regret to learn of the continued serious illness of their infant son. Mrs. Rogers and the little boy were moved a few days ago to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Henry at Lake Weir, in hope that the change would be beneficial for both.

Miss Mary Lee Hill arrived yesterday afternoon from Knoxville, Tenn., where she has been taking a course of study at a summer school. Miss Hill is the expression teacher in the Ocala high school and a remarkably gifted young woman.

BY THE TERMS OF A CONTRACT

How a Secret Agreement Was Revealed in Good Time.

A gentleman midway between birth and threescore years and ten sat with a girl of eighteen. He was still young enough to be considered a companion for a young lady. In this case the two had been friends for years. When the girl was a child and he in the twenties she had been accustomed to climb into his lap and hug him. She had got over that. The man was speaking. "You don't remember your mother, do you?"

"No. You know she died when I was five. But it seems to me I know her from her letters, many of which I have found and have read over and over again."

"Have you come among her papers upon a copy of a contract she made with me some fifteen or sixteen years ago?"

"No. What contract?"

"It was between your mother and me and was to be kept secret."

"Oh," with a slight toss of her head, "I beg your pardon."

"Some day I may show it to you, but that will depend upon circumstances."

The girl waited for the man to explain, which he failed to do. The conversation dragged, and the man took his departure.

A few weeks later the two were together in the garden.

"You remember, I suppose," said the man, "the contract made years ago between me and your mother that I told you about."

"And refused to say what it was."

"There are conditions under which I may gratify your curiosity."

"Such as?"

"Well, if you marry, for instance."

"I'm sure my mother could not have entered upon any business agreement with you whereby you were to influence me to marry any particular person."

"Certainly not. I would not think of influencing you in such a matter."

"Then how can my marriage have anything to do with it?"

"Your marriage with any particular person doesn't pertain. I meant that in case you were simply married I might show you the contract."

The girl pondered awhile, then said: "Is there any one I might marry who would have an interest in this agreement?"

If he could have looked into her eyes he would have seen cunning. Evidently there was something about the subject of their conversation that profoundly interested her. He glanced at her inquiringly, but her head was bent over a flower she was plucking.

"There is one," he said, "who if you married him would have no interest in the agreement."

"You speak in riddles."

A smile hovered about her lips, but she kept her back to him, picking a handful of flowers. When she turned the smile was gone.

"There is my cousin Will," she said. "If I married him, would he have any interest in the agreement?"

"Not after the wedding."

"But before the wedding?"

"That would depend upon whether he desired a wedding with you."

"Would it depend upon anything else?"

"Yes; upon whether you desired a wedding with him."

"In other words, this contract would interest him (and me) only in case we wished to marry."

"You have drawn a conclusion not based on proper foundations. In other words, you have perpetrated a fallacy."

"Suppose," she went on after framing another question, "I should marry you. Would you be interested in the contract?"

He started and cast a quick glance at her. Was she stating a hypothetical case for the purpose of trapping him?

"That, I fear—I mean—you would not be likely to marry me."

"But if I should?"

"The contract would be of no moment to me."

"I like this conundrum," she said presently. "The solution is well concealed. Let me see. If I marry you'll tell me the answer. My marriage with any particular person doesn't pertain. There is one I could marry who would have no interest in the agreement. If I married Will it would only interest him if he wished to marry me, and even then it would make no difference. If I married you, you would have no interest in it. What is there to base a guess on?"

"Nevertheless I wish you would guess it."

He spoke ruefully. She cast a glance up at him.

"Suppose I try?"

"You can't guess it."

"I can. The contract is that—here it is."

She pulled out a small paper that had been tucked in her belt and handed it to him. It was a betrothal between her and her companion made for her by her mother when she was a baby.

"I thought you said you had not found it."

"I hadn't. After you told me about it I ransacked all the old desks and cabinets in the house."

"Do you stand by your mother's agreement?"

She threw her arms about his neck.
